Strongly Agree	Excellent		Engage my colleagues
Strongly Agree	Excellent	Clear, concise and FUN!	Improve programs
Strongly Agree	Excellent	If there is no COPY, copyright is not an issue. Using embed code to embed a YouTube video (for example) in your online course is NOT an infringement of copyright, because it is the player, not the "work" (video) that is copied.	Improve programs, Engage my colleagues, "safely" enrich online courses with embedded images and a/v material	Very nicely done. Clear. Engaging. Not too technical. Truly addressed key questions and concerns regarding copyright for educators and instructional designers.
Strongly Agree	Excellent		mainly for my edification
Strongly Agree	Excellent	Great talking points for working with instructors and presenters. Reinforced that we are doing the right things, but now we can speak more simply about WHY	Engage my colleagues, Improve compliance	Great audience engagement.
