

Thomas J. Tobin

 Keynote presenter

Thomas J. Tobin, author and professional educator, discusses Universal Design for Learning, a framework grounded in the neuroscience of why, what and how people learn. Tobin shows that although it is often associated with students with disabilities, Universal Design for Learning can be broadened toward a larger ease-of-use and general diversity framework within all communities.

Thomas Tobin

Disability Awareness Week

SEPTEMBER 16–20, 2019

Friday, September 20

8:30–9 a.m.

Registration & Light Refreshments

9–10:30 a.m.

Faculty-focused Universal Design Learning Keynote

10:45 a.m.–12:15 p.m.

Universal Design Learning Workshop

12:15–1:15 p.m.

Luncheon Q&A

1:15–2:45 p.m.

Student-focused Universal Design for Learning breakout session

3–4 p.m.

Universal Design for Learning with the Universal Access Committee

slcc.edu/drc/daw.aspx